

The Carl von Ossietzky University of Oldenburg (UOL) is proud to support the More Than Our Rank initiative in order to express its belief that the kind of quality that matters cannot be expressed in the single number of a rank. While acknowledging that rankings can be helpful – for example to inform prospect students about study opportunities – societal, technological and scientific achievements are often not adequately expressed.

The Carl von Ossietzky University of Oldenburg strives for excellence in terms of research, teaching and third mission. Since its foundation in 1973, it has developed a unique profile combining - in the tradition of its namesake – societal engagement with international visible cutting-edge research in strategically selected areas. Its reputation in terms of teacher's training (almost 40% of its students) and its ability to run a Cluster of Excellence in audiology since 2012 as well as the approval of two Clusters of Excellence in animal navigation and marine sciences in 2025 are just some examples. UOL's strategic choices, ranging from its teaching profile to appointments of professors, are always based on processes of peer reviewed quality assessments, aiming at excellence and quality in relevant areas – UOL does not aim at producing quantitative parameters for parameter's sake. Its guiding principles are collaboration and impact – not scoring. Especially in times of scarcity of funds UOL is dedicated to put as many resources available as possible into the mission for excellence, dedicated to the people and the planet, while being firmly rooted in the heart of a region that stretches from Groningen to Bremen.
